Learnframe™ Company Background

“Revolutionizing the way the world learns is the philosophy on which Learnframe was founded. We have established a universal learning infrastructure technology that bridges the knowledge divide and allows information access to anyone, at anytime, from anywhere in the world.”—Mike Memmott, Sr., Chairman, CEO Learnframe

Learnframe has developed advanced e-Learning technologies since its inception in 1992. After initially producing an authoring tool and creating courseware, Learnframe created Pinnacle™, an open architecture learning management system that integrates any courseware or third-party application on the market.

Learnframe’s products and services include Nebo™, Pinnacle (formerly Pinnacle Learning Manager™), Learnframe’s Learning Center™ and Learnframe’s Professional Services™.

Learnframe’s newest product is Nebo, the Universal Platform™ and knowledge hub. Our Universal Platform includes out-of-the box e-Learning solutions, as well as the tools and infrastructure necessary to build learning solutions. Nebo acts as a universal platform to provide a central point of access and management for all your learning solutions. Since Nebo is built entirely on Java and Enterprise Java Beans, it harnesses the power to provide cross-platform, scalable learning solutions and organize learning for ease of access to personalized learning for your employees, partners and customers. Nebo has patent-pending KYSO Technology™—what Learnframe calls our secret sauce or the essence of component-based architecture.

Pinnacle is Learnframe’s flagship learning management system that manages and measures your entire learning process. Pinnacle provides the tools necessary to integrate scheduling, delivering and measuring success of curricula comprised of thousands of courses produced by a variety of vendors. Learnframe’s AdminSTAR™ product provides resource management and scheduling as well as skills assessment.

The Learnframe Learning Center is an e-Commerce front end that provides web-based content delivery, hosting and re-branding services as well as one of the largest online libraries of CBT courses on the market. It also includes a modularized set of connections that act as data interpreters to manage many different vendors’ courseware and applications in a central database. The Learning Center is the solution to KnowledgeE-Commerce™—the point where e-Learning and e-Commerce converge.

Learnframe’s Professional Services group manages client relationships and product scope analysis and ensures project completion, product delivery and client satisfaction.
